

Children's Crisis and the Revival of Morality

Abstract

By the improvement of government guidelines for study, the importance of moral education as keystone of all educational activities in school is emphasized. And this improvement and reorganization of course of studies should be considered in a large context which is the result of decline or lack of moral normative awareness in our contemporary society. At the same time it has been pointed out that children are facing serious crises that their minds could not growing soundly by various negative conditions around them.

In this study we examine the ideal way of moral educating program in the teacher-training course of the university, confronted to the fact that moral education has be made a special subject in elementary and lower secondary school's curriculum. Exploring the significance and problems of moral education as required subject, we clarified the points to be noted by teachers who teach children about moral values, acts and behaviors at the school.
